

135 mn people will be living with dementia worldwide by 2050 (Al Ahram, Sep. 24)

According to the Alzheimer's Disease International report, the number of people living with dementia worldwide will reach 135 million by 2050. The report also estimates that by 2050, most of people with dementia will live in developing countries.