

Parl't debates controversial clinical trial law

The health minister along with hospital and university representatives have initiated parliamentary discussions of the controversial articles of the clinical trial law. The minister indicated that there is broad consensus regarding the law, noting that legislation is necessary for the manufacture of oncology medications. The proposed law is expected to be ready within a month.