

Universal healthcare system: 400,000 family medical records filed

As many as 400,000 family medical records have been filed so far in phase-one governorates, which have already rolled out the universal healthcare system. The new scheme has announced the eligibility requirements for receiving free services which include proof of income and assets.