

First group of universal healthcare doctors completes training

The first group of doctors who will join the universal healthcare system has completed pre-employment training at the Suez Canal University. The health ministry has signed a deal with the university to train all the employees joining the new system.