

Screening campaign for rheumatic heart disease kicks off in Alexandria

A new campaign that aims to detect rheumatic heart disease in children was launched in Alexandria. Mobile medical teams are set to screen about 7,000 pupils across the governorate.