

Diabetes screening campaign to debut within days

The Ministry of Health will launch a new campaign to help Egyptians find out their risk for diabetes. The campaign will screen people over 40 years of age for diabetes risk factors, including overweight and hypertension, and will offer free treatment to patients.