

Three private hospitals seek to join universal healthcare system

Three private hospitals in Port Said have applied for licenses to become providers of universal healthcare services. As many as six public hospitals will provide healthcare services, with the number to rise to 14 when the system kicks off in the governorate.