

MoH to analyze talcum powder amid safety concerns

The Ministry of Health's pharmacovigilance center will analyze samples of talcum powder to make sure that they are asbestos-free after recent media reports that some talc-containing products made by a US firm could be tainted with carcinogenic asbestos.

.