

WHO forecasts 81% cancer jump in low-income countries

The World Health Organization (WHO) warned that cancer cases would rise by 81% in low- and middle-income countries because of a lack of investment in prevention and care. WHO said in a report that these countries had focused their limited resources on combating infectious diseases and improving maternal and child health instead of fighting cancer.