

Egypt to draw on other countries' experience in universal healthcare system: ministers

The government seeks optimal application of the universal healthcare system by learning from international best practices in healthcare, the finance minister said during a meeting with a World Bank delegation. He asserted that the government is very keen on cooperating with international organizations in different development sectors, chiefly health and education, as it aims to develop sustainable universal health coverage.