

Parl't health committee slams poor services at health insurance clinics

Members of the Parliamentary Health Committee called for the resolution of problems faced by health insurance clinics such poor service delivery and staff shortage. The Health Insurance Organization representative said that many doctors simply refuse to move when posted to remote areas, adding that the doctors do their best with the resources available to them.