

Health ministry to launch mobile app for the detection of counterfeit drugs

The Ministry of Health will launch a smartphone application allowing users to check the authenticity of the medications they purchase. The ministry is developing a drug tracking system in cooperation with the Ministry of Military Production. By the end of the year, all pharmaceutical companies will have at least one medication on the tracking system.