

One million people each day contract sexual infections: WHO (Al Messa, June 7)

About a million people each day worldwide contract sexually transmitted infections, according to the World Health Organization. The vast majority of these infections are easily preventable and curable, but some diseases - gonorrhea in particular - are evolving into super-bug forms and are increasingly difficult to treat with antibiotics, the WHO said in a report.