

Universal healthcare system to be automated for better patient care

The health ministry will use a computer-based system for the universal healthcare scheme as part of the government's strategy to automate the healthcare industry. The pharmaceutical industry will also become automated by establishing a medication database and by linking production lines to pharmacies and distributors to curb drug counterfeiting.