

Health minister: Number of drugs in short supply is falling

The number of drug shortages has fallen to its lowest levels due to the recent reforms in the health sector, the health minister said. The Ministry of Health has created a database for all the registered medications ahead of the launch of a drug tracking system planned for the next few weeks.