

US conference discusses coronavirus

A conference at the New York University was held to enhance understanding and share knowledge on the evolving coronavirus disease. Experts revealed that the disease has an incubation period of 5-12 days. An infected person's cough or sneeze can carry the virus to another person standing almost two meters away. Polymerase chain reaction (PCR) testing is used to detect the coronavirus disease. Experts recommended the influenza vaccination as a measure to reduce the severity of the infection despite it being ineffective against the coronavirus.