

Alexandria University poisons center warns of pediatric medication mix-up

Alexandria University poisons center has warned that some pharmacists mix-up Apidone Syrup, a pediatric medication for allergic conditions, and Apexidone Syrup which is used to treat hyperactivity. The center said that some children have suffered from body twitches after taking the wrong medication.